

Nation's Largest Creation Network Pushes Back Against Satanic Temple
The International Association for Creation Gives Out Free Museum Passes

Orlando, Fla.: Today, The International Association for Creation, the nation's premier Creation Tour & Museum Ministry, announced that they will be providing free admission to their museums across the United States of America for public school students who are affected by the Satanic Temple's "After School Satan" program. Claim your child's free admission by August 15th, e-mail contact@associationforcreation.org or reach out via Twitter @theIACtweets. As The International Association for Creation is seeing an increase of visitors at its museums across the globe, and especially within the United States of America, their staff is working to meet the needs of the Christian community.

Recently, The International Association for Creation's Director of Communications, Craig, said, "We here at The International Association for Creation, alongside our Member Museums, are helping parents take proactive steps in equipping their children with the facts necessary to defend their Christian faith against the atheistic humanism that is increasingly present in our culture today."

To make good on Craig's sentiments, a staff member from The International Association for Creation has provided information on the following tools made available for parents to access online:

Find great creation resources to help your children defend their faith, locate one of the many creation tours and museums that have programs for children and youth, or attend a creation event in your area, take a look at what is coming up near you at www.LearnCreation.org.

About The International Association for Creation: The International Association for Creation is the leading professional organization dedicated to providing you and your family with local Biblical worldview resources through museums and ministries around the world.
