National Homeschool Day — Growing Globally for God!

Online and On-Site Homeschool Celebration Goes Global

ORLANDO, Fla. — Feb. 15, 2019 — National Homeschool Day, a global, faith-based, home education forum, will be held online and on-site Feb. 23. Featured speakers include: Israel Wayne from Family Renewal, LLC; Dr. Lainna Callentine from Sciexperience; Sherri Seligson from Apologia; Meredith Curtis from Powerline Productions Publishing; Rich and Barb Heki from Grandparents of Homeschoolers; and, Kyle Justice from Awesome Science Media.

Registration is free but required at www.NationalHomeschoolDay.com. A link to watch the simulcast videos on-demand will be emailed to each registrant. Private home viewers then may access the videos anytime on Feb. 23 while the times for group showings will be determined by the event host.

A ministry of The International Association for Creation (IAC), the largest professional association specializing in the Biblical worldview and creation apologetics, National Homeschool Day exists to equip homeschooling parents with the resources they need to help their children learn about God's creation through hands-on experience and interactive studies, with the goal of preparing those children to know our Creator God and live a faith-filled life.

Founder/COO of The International Association for Creation and Founder/Managing Director of National Homeschool Day Steven Craig Policastro, Jr. says, "Our ultimate goal with this event is to reach families, by encouraging and equipping parents to point the hearts of their children to Jesus Christ." Event partners include state and local homeschooling associations in the United States and national homeschooling organizations in Canada, Mexico, Ireland, Scotland, England, Wales, South Africa, Australia, New Zealand and The European Academy for Christian Homeschooling (TEACH).

Several well-known homeschool brands are sponsoring this year's event, including Apologia, Master Books and The Old Schoolhouse Magazine.
